

Former City Mayor Dies Sunday at 76

HARRY B. WALKER

Harry B. Walker Was Prominent in Business, Sports

Former Mayor Harry B. Walker, 105 St. James street, died Sunday after a long illness. He was 76 years of age.

Mr. Walker had led a retired life for 10 years after many active years in the civic, business and sports life of the city.

HE WAS PROMINENT in Republican politics, held the distinction of being one of Kingston's leading druggists, was a horseman of renown, and figured in local boxing promotions.

Commenting on his death, Mayor Frederick H. Stang said today: "In the passing of former Mayor Harry Walker, the City of Kingston loses another one of its outstanding citizens. His interest in the affairs of this city is well known to all. He lived a full life and gave unselfishly of his time and effort to make Kingston a better place in which to live. His passing closes another chapter in the political, social and economic life of this community."

His funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, Wednesday at 11 a. m. Burial will be in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Friends may call at the Carr chapel Tuesday between 7 and 9 p. m.

MR. WALKER was elected Republican mayor of the city on November 7, 1933. He resigned because of poor health after a short term in office.

Conrad J. Heiselman, who ran with him as alderman-at-large, moved up to the mayorship. He served the rest of the term, and was elected twice thereafter.

E. Frank Flanagan was Mr. Walker's Democratic opponent. The election campaign that year was one of the liveliest in the annals of political history because of the popularity of both candidates.

Mr. Flanagan, a leading clothier at the time, and later president of the Savings & Loan Association of Kingston, died several years ago.

ALTHOUGH the two went through a rugged political campaign they remained friends always.

The former mayor was a native Kingstonian. His father, the late Benjamin G. Walker, was a well-known carriage manufacturer in the area, when horse-drawn vehicles were popular.

Mr. Walker inherited a love for horses, which never waned. He owned several harness racers, which he drove himself. Mr. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Among those attending were Mayor Frederick H. Stang, former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman and Chairman Charles Relyea of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors. (Freeman photo)

Revise Income Forecast

Budget Surplus Figure Next June Near Billion

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—A revised estimate of government income and spending, due this week, is expected to forecast a budget surplus next June 30 of "something under a billion dollars."

That estimate, from an administration source, would be double the 435 million dollar surplus President Eisenhower forecast in his budget message to Congress last January, but little more than half the $1,754,357,066 actual surplus recorded for the year ended June 30, 1956.

The formal estimate now being prepared is one of several the treasury department makes during the year, subject to revision as conditions change.

Both revenue and spending estimates are expected to be higher than those on which Eisenhower based his estimate last January. At that time he proposed a spending program for the year of $65,865,000,000, and the outlook at that time was for $66,300,000,000 in revenues.

But the business boom has continued with little or no letup into this year, sending personal income to a new high and corporate profits close to those of last year. Since personal and corporate income taxes are major sources of revenue, government income would be raised accordingly.

Chairman Byrd (D.-Va.) of the Senate Finance Committee predicted last week government receipts during the year might reach 70 billion dollars, but he said increased spending might also reach that figure unless cuts are made in spending plans.

Sen. Frear (D.-Del.) said Saturday a Senate Banking subcommittee on which he serves will hold hearings this fall to study the nation's economy. The group is headed by Sen. Robertson (D.-Va.).

Frear said a tax cut "could and should" be made, but Byrd said he doubted whether such action could be taken.

Rep. Patman (D.-Tex.) said meantime the Eisenhower administration's "hard money" efforts to curb inflation are doing more harm than good.

He referred specifically to Federal Reserve Board action last week in approving an increase to 3 per cent in the discount rate at five of its 12 district banks. Two others already were using that rate.

Patman, vice chairman of the Senate House economic committee, said the result will be higher interest rates on loans in general. He said these would be added to manufacturing, transportation and retailing costs, pushing up the cost of living, and also would raise taxes by increasing interest costs on federal, state and local government bonds.

Five Hurt in Broadway Crash, Driver Held on Two Charges

Five persons were injured, two cars were badly wrecked and a driver was arrested on two charges as the result of a collision at Broadway and Stuyvesant street early Sunday.

William Charles Boughton, 21, of RD 1, Box 260, Kingston, arrested on charges of reckless driving and for driving without glasses contrary to a license requirement, was due to appear before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today, but was still under treatment for injuries at Kingston Hospital. His condition was reported as "apparently good," today.

Officers Gilbert Gray and Floyd Krom, in reporting the accident, indicated they had been in pursuit of the offending car, just prior to the collision. Injured in the mishap were Frank Boughton, 23, of the same address, who suffered a laceration of the forehead, nose and eye injuries; John Costantino, 34, of Highland, back and chest injuries, and a lip laceration; Anthony Ninni, 23, of Wappingers Falls, scalp cuts; Vincent Lopez, 25, of Wappingers Falls, nose and chest injuries, and Officers Krom and Gray called for an ambulance and wreckers immediately after the mishap. They were taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment, police said, but Anthony Ninni refused treatment and went home by taxi.

Sgt. Thomas Tomshaw, and Officers Charles McCullough and John Frash were also at the scene. The arrest was by Officers Gray and Krom.

A police report at 3:20 a. m., said the station wagon, owned by John C. Boughton, of RD 1, Box 260, Kingston, and driven by William Boughton, was headed south on Broadway, "crossing the center line to the wrong side of the street," as the other car, operated by John Costantino, of Highland was headed north on Broadway.

Police said both cars were total wrecks, and were towed from the scene. The fire department was called to wash away spilled gasoline and the public works department sanded the area.

Egypt to Reply Tuesday

Nasser Expected to See Committee in Cairo

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 27 (AP)—Egypt will reply tomorrow to the Menzies committee request for talks on the Suez canal crisis, an official Egyptian source said today.

President Nasser is expected to agree to meet with Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies' five-nation committee, selected last week by the London Suez conference to present an 18-nation plan for international control.

Usually reliable sources said they understood Nasser will agree to meet the committee in Cairo with the proviso that Egypt is not obligated to accept the plan.

Menzies stood by in London, awaiting the reply. The message had been expected today, since sources in Cairo said it was transmitted to the Egyptian embassy in London yesterday.

Egypt's reply was framed after Nasser had a special meeting with his cabinet yesterday. Menzies was appointed by the London Suez conference last week to head a five-nation committee to present to Nasser the plan for an international authority to operate the canal. The plan, proposed by the United States, was endorsed by 17 of the other 21 nations at the conference.

Informants here said Nasser would receive Menzies and his committee in Cairo, but would insist that the entire Suez problem be discussed, not just the majority plan. India at the conference proposed that an international board be empowered only to advise Egypt in running the canal.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East news agency said the cabinet, in reaching its decision, "looked into the consideration that the proposed meeting did not commit Egypt to any obligation and that the invitation to present different viewpoints." It added that the Australian Prime Minister's request for a meeting said Egypt would not commit itself by accepting. Earlier reports said Nasser would propose a series of individual or collective treaties between Egypt and the nations using the canal guaranteeing traffic through the waterway interference.

In the face of steady preparations by Britain and France for military action if negotiations fail to produce a peaceful solution, Nasser appeared to be bending. (Continued on Page 11, Col. 8)

Nixon Returns To Washington Ready for Fight

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Vice President Nixon came back today from the bedside of his seriously ill father and prepared to plunge into his campaign for reelection.

After an overnight flight from California, Nixon arrived here at 7:55 a. m. EDT with his wife and their two daughters, Patricia, 10, and Julie, 8.

The vice president said he would rest this morning and go to his office this afternoon to confer with officials of the Republican National Committee on campaign plans.

Nixon, in answer to questions, told reporters at National Airport that his role would be to concentrate on the states where close races for Senate races were in prospect in the Nov. 6 election.

Saying Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee—the Democratic candidates for President and vice president—were "good men" who could "well" present opposition views to the administration, Nixon (Continued on Page 11, Col. 3)

He was fined $25 and his license was revoked because of a reported fourth offense, when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

Eugene Goggins, 18, of Stormville was arrested at 8:15 p. m. Saturday by Officers Krom and Gray on a charge of driving without a license of his own and for alleged unauthorized use of another license.

Arrested also at the same time on Cornell street was Donald W. Johnson, 19, of Maloney road, Poughkeepsie, who was booked on a charge of permitting an unlicensed operator to drive. Goggins was fined $10 on each charge and Johnson was fined $10.

Richard Woehrls, 23, of 91 Hooker street, was arrested by officers Gilbert Gray and Michael Mazzuca on Greenkill avenue on a switched license plate charge. He was fined $10 today and the plate was confiscated.

Elbert Rodney Carey, 27, of 3432 NE, Second avenue, Miami, Fla., was arrested by officers Gilbert Gray and Louis Sapp, Jr., at 2:30 a. m., today, on a charge of failing to produce an operator's license on request of an officer. He forfeited $10 through failure to appear in city court.

COLLISION ON BROADWAY TURN—Five persons were injured and a driver was arrested after a collision in which these cars were wrecked at Broadway and Stuyvesant street early Sunday. Final Link On Thruway Opens Friday

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The final three-mile link in the 427-mile New York State Thruway will be opened to traffic Friday.

The last leg is through suburban Yonkers to the Bronx line of New York city, and its opening will end a bottleneck that has snarled traffic at the Bronx-Westchester county border since last winter.

The Thruway Authority started last winter to carve out the final section of the toll road.

Authority Chairman Bertram D. Tallamy, who announced the Friday opening on a television program ("Viewpoint," WRCA-TV) yesterday, said there would be no ceremony to mark the event.

Completion of the Yonkers strip—which took nine months and cost 15½ million dollars—will be in time for Labor Day weekend motorists to drive from Buffalo to the New York city line along the 562-million-dollar superhighway. Landscaping and other final touches will be completed within a month in Yonkers.

There have been piecemeal dedications since the first 115-mile stretch was opened in June 1954. Construction took 10 years.

Expenditure of more millions is planned to construct four spurs that will tie directly into the thruway and to build the New England spur of the thruway, actually an independent road that is to be joined to the thruway by way of the proposed cross-Westchester expressway.

Tallamy said in his announcement that the first two-mile segment of the New England thruway will be in service on a toll-free basis this fall. There will be a 15-cent toll when the full 15-mile route from the Bronx to the Connecticut border is completed late in 1958.

The Major Deegan expressway in the Bronx, completed last week, joins the New York state thruway at the city line. The free expressway feeds into the Triborough bridge, a gateway to Long Island, as well as into the Franklin D. Roosevelt (East river) Drive. The thruway itself also ties into other main routes in the metropolitan area.

The New England section of the thruway system is designed to relieve congestion on the old Boston Post road (U. S. 1). The New England thruway will start in the Bronx with feeder links to the Bronx-Whitestone bridge and the proposed Throgs Neck bridge. The road will link up with the Connecticut turnpike (Continued on Page 18, Col. 4)

"This proving ground, where most of the Soviet tests have occurred, is located in south-eastern Russia."

Report Labor Leaders For Democratic Ticket

Forest Park, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders today were reported moving toward an outright endorsement of the Democratic ticket in the November election as they did separately in 1952.

But some among them called for a cautious approach that would avoid committing the 15 million member labor union organization.

The 29-member AFL-CIO executive council gathered here at "Unity House," a sumptuous summer camp in the Pocono mountains owned by the Ladies Garment Worker's union, to review the national slate of both major parties.

Would Bow Out for Dewey

Javits Says He'll Run For Senate Position

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits says his name will be presented to the Republican State Committee meeting in Albany Sept. 10 for the party's nomination for U. S. Senator.

Javits did not say what member of the committee would offer his name at the meeting which will make the nomination.

Javits, who made the statement yesterday on a television program (Citizens Union Searchlight, WRCA-TV), had said previously that he would be available for the nomination if his party wanted him to run.

Javits said yesterday he would bow out only if former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey could be persuaded to run.

The Attorney General said he had been among those urging Dewey to accept the nomination. But Dewey, he added, "seems to like private life, and who is to argue with a man who has given 20 years of his life to the public service?"

Javits said the decision to present his name at the state committee meeting for nomination makes it "look as though there will be a vote on the floor of the convention."

Former State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern and Dean Alfange have announced their candidacies for the GOP Senate candidates.

The Sept. 10 GOP state committee meeting will make the Senate nomination under authorization by the 1954 party state convention.

Coutros Body Is Found in Woods Near Ellenville

The body of George Coutros, 57, a fern picker of New York city, was found late Saturday morning in a wooded section about 300 yards from his pickup truck parked on the Ulster Heights road just outside Ellenville.

Dr. Charles Rosenstock of Ellenville issued a verdict of death due to natural causes.

A search party was organized Saturday morning, made up of troopers of the Ellenville, Phoenicia and Ferndale stations, the Woodbourne Fire Department and volunteers. Mr. Coutros reportedly entered the woods at a point near the Ulster-Sullivan county line on Friday morning.

Mr. Coutros, gathered the ferns for the commercial florist market.

Walker delighted discussing the days of racing on the Rondout creek ice and on Albany avenue.

HE HAD A SHARP memory about the sport of kings and could sit by the hour talking horses and their records.

Mr. Walker served as president of the Kingston Horsemen's Association for a number of terms, keeping up his interest in horses even after the racing days faded here.

Saddle and coach horses were attractive to him, too, and owners placed confidence in his judgment of horsemanship.

WHEN THE Mayor's Industrial Committee promoted boxing during the Conrad J. Heiselman administration, Mr. Walker served on the group, and struck up acquaintanceship with boys who fought their way out the amateur ranks to the heights in the professional class.

He was a favorite with Marty Servo, who continued to write to "Doc" long after he became welterweight champion of the world.

Ray Robinson and Melio Bettina, two other champions were others who delighted chatting with him, and Mickey Walker often dropped in to pay call when he was a local business man.

HIS ADVICE to horsemen and boxers was the same: "Always be a good sport, whether you win or lose."

Mr. Walker never missed the fairs of the sector when he was able to travel, and his favorite place was at the horse shows.

For years he took an active part in the long established Dutchess County Fair, which is holding its 111th annual event this year.

Mr. Walker was a druggist on Central Broadway from 1910 until 1946, the year of his retirement. The store is now known as Central Pharmacy, operated by Louis Epstein.

HE GRADUATED from Albany College of Pharmacy, served his apprenticeship with the late F. J. R. Clarke drug store, and was employed as a pharmacist for five years with W. F. Dederick on Wall street.

Joining the late Dr. B. W. Maiben in a partnership, the two ran the Broadway drug store for many years, and later Mr. Walker took the business over himself. Previously the store had been operated by John S. Burns.

Mr. Walker was a charter vice president of the Central Businessmen's Association, which he helped organize, and also served as its president.

PRIOR TO HIS election as mayor, Mr. Walker was a member of the fire board. He was an ardent volunteer fireman as a member of Wiltwyck Hose Co.

He attended the Old Dutch Church and was a member of Kingston Lodge 10, F. & A. M.

Surviving are his wife, the former Katharine Osterhout; two sisters, Mrs. Ralph W. Rhodes of Levittown, Pa., and Mrs. Oscar A. Goodsell of Kingston; also several nieces and nephews.

Says Wagner Will Win

Washington, Aug. 27 (P)—Former Sen. James M. Mead (D-N.Y.) said today he "fully expects" that Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York city will win the Democratic nomination to succeed Sen. Lehman (D-N.Y.).

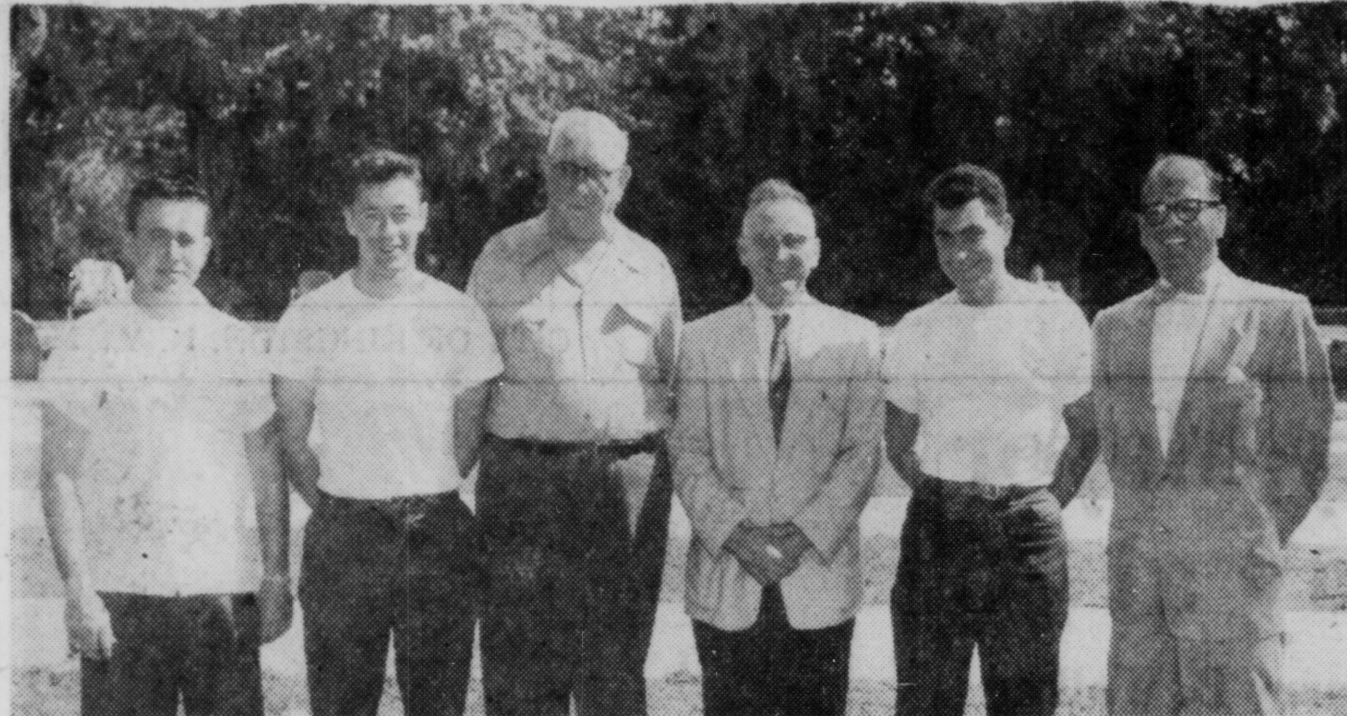

Lehman, 78, announced last week that he would not be a candidate for reelection. Mead's name was quickly brought up as a candidate for the vacancy. He very promptly spiked such speculation.

Musicians Union Opposing Early Tavern Closing

A committee was named by Union Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, at a recent meeting, to gather statistical data in answer to the one o'clock closing ruling of the Ulster County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The union emphasized that many area resort hotels and clubs, which operate on year-around schedules, will be affected by the new ruling.

The union voted unanimously to support the Ulster County Liquor Dealers Association in its answer to the ABC board's ruling, which is due to become effective Oct. 1.

Michael J. Marchuk, the union's secretary, during a general discussion of the new closing deadline, outlined the effect of the new regulation on the resort establishments, and on a motion passed by the membership, John Cole, president, appointed the committee consisting of John Napoleon, Peter Ferraro, Harry Castiglione, and Marchuk.

They are "to compile facts and figures, and to take whatever action is necessary to support the Ulster County Liquor Dealers Association."

State and Albany police began a search of the department's pillared building, near the state capitol. Between last Monday and Saturday night a total of 13 bomb threats had been made in Albany and near by Troy. Saturday night's calls were to a downtown Albany store and a private home here.

Admits Negroes

Clinton, Tenn., Aug. 27 (P)—Clinton High School today became the first state-supported secondary school in Tennessee to admit Negroes. A handful of Negro boys and girls reported for classes along with about 750 whites. Principal D. J. Brittain Jr., said there was "no trouble." "There were a few people congregated outside the building but they made no effort to prevent anyone from entering," Brittain said. The principal said the exact number of Negroes on hand was uncertain.

Approximately 90 per cent of the land in Denmark is productive and about three-fourths actually is farmed.

Why We Say--

STILL TRUE: This expression came about from a play "Riche-lieu," by Bulwer Lytton. The actual quotation is "Beneath the rule of men entirely great, the pen is mightier than the sword." Since modern-day psychologists say that violence is a sign of defeat this quotation seems to have the right idea.

S. ambassador to Russia and Belgium.

Firemen and the Law

Nicholasville, Ky. (P)—It looked like a losing battle for Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Reynolds when their farm home near here caught fire. They fought the blaze in the basement with a garden hose after putting in a phone call for help. But a city ordinance prohibits taking the fire truck out of town—and the Reynolds knew it. Soon, however, Fire Chief Walter Brumfield and several of his men showed up and quickly put out the flames. "The ordinance confining the fire truck to town didn't say a word against volunteer firemen leaving without it. They just brought the extinguishers."

Big Bill Cost Too Much

Philadelphia (P)—The Henry H. Houston Post of the American Legion in Germantown has given away Big Bill. The moths like him too much. Big Bill is a stuffed buffalo head. When alive he traveled with the Buffalo Bill wild west show and after his death in 1905 a photograph of his head served as model for the buffalo nickel of 1913. The Academy of Natural Science gets Big Bill. The Legionnaires say he was too much trouble and too expensive to keep demoted.

RIESEL'S A SYMBOL

Victor Riesel, a labor reporter who was blinded by an acid attack early last April, has become a two-fold symbol. He symbolizes, for one thing, citizen opposition to the organized crime that uses labor rackets as one of its weapons against society. And he symbolizes, also, a free and enlightened press.

Prior to the attack on him, Riesel had been writing extensively about industrial racketeering. He was about to testify before a Federal grand jury that was investigating the subject. He was attacked both as an alert citizen and as a courageous arm of the press. In both capacities he was a menace to the masterminds of organized crime. They sought to intimidate Riesel, and not only him but others who might challenge the power of the crime bosses.

Society is not defenseless, however. New York police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation have traced the acid-throwing to a young hoodlum who was murdered in July. At least two other murder victims have been connected with the attack on Riesel. The police hope soon to find the master criminals who ordered both the acid-throwing and the subsequent murders.

That is part of society's defense—relentless police work to root out the enemies of society. But an equally important part of that defense is a free press and free citizens who will continue to expose wrongdoing. So long as these are not intimidated, there is every reason to believe that the leaders of organized crime—and not just their pretty henchmen—will eventually be brought to justice.

TURNPIKES SERVE PURPOSE

Ever since Congress enacted the 33 billion-dollar highway bill, reports have been going the rounds that the era of turnpike building soon will end.

That may be so. The wobbly status of the present market for turnpike revenue bonds certainly indicates that investors fear it.

But whether or not this is true, and whatever the ultimate disposition of existing toll roads, it should never be forgotten that they have made a vital contribution to the improvement of America's highway system.

While politicians merely talked of better roads and some highway experts clucked their disapproval of the toll road idea, the turnpikes were built. They are in use now, providing the motorist with modern transportation he can't get from the free highway system as it exists today.

Furthermore, the vast interstate highway net authorized by Congress will be 13 years in the making. A lot of driving will be done by millions of motorists over thousands of miles of turnpike before that plan is fully realized.

The turnpikes were a sound idea and are filling a real need. They deserve, and undoubtedly will get, the motorists' support.

SEEING IS BELIEVING

"Officer, I'm sure I never went through a red light."

"You didn't? How do you explain this, then?" Out comes a picture in which the motorist can see his car going through a traffic light. That the light is red can be told by its position in the customary grouping of red, amber and green.

Cutting in front of another car, following too closely, and other offenses are all shown by the traffic policeman's new aide, which is to be installed in Lansing, Mich. State patrol cars are being equipped with a still polaroid camera which develops its picture immediately after it is taken.

Seeing his own misdemeanor in a photograph may well make the ordinary happy-go-lucky driver a little less brash.

Ike May Get Tougher

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Mild-talking President Eisenhower may have to be tough-talking if he's re-elected. His pleasant relationship with Congress doesn't figure to last through a second term.

FOR HIM a second term must be his last one, under the constitutional amendment adopted in 1951. It's almost axiomatic that a president serving his last term loses influence on Congress.

This was recognized in Corwin's and Koenig's recent book, "The Presidency Today," when they said:

"It has been repeatedly found that, once the end of the incumbent's tenure is definitely known, his influence in Congress dwindles and his programs come to a standstill."

IN HIS FIRST term Eisenhower relied mainly on gentle persuasion with Democrats and Republicans to get his programs through Congress. Much he did not. Much he didn't.

Critics complain he would have accomplished more if he had asserted more leadership, fought harder, been tougher.

Some of the strongest opposition to Eisenhower during his first term came from within the Republican ranks in Congress. But it's no wonder the sounds of discord die down as the election approaches.

Eisenhower is the greatest unemployment insurance Republicans in Congress have had since Herbert Hoover won the presidency in 1928 and carried the Republicans along with him to control of Congress.

Eisenhower did that for them in 1952. They lost to the Democrats in the 1954 off-year elections when Eisenhower wasn't running. They looked steadily forward to 1956.

SO LONG AS it was possible he would run again this year, they could hope not only to retain their own seats but even add a few more to get a majority over the Democrats.

One of Eisenhower's stated reasons for running now is to help the party. But once he wins—if he does—Republicans in Congress will no longer have that same job-security dependence on him, since he can't run for a third term.

It's natural therefore that he would lose some influence over them. Besides, a Republican victory in Congress would mean some of the Republicans who disagree with him most would regain key committee chairmanships.

FURTHER: With Eisenhower out of the 1960 running, congressional Republicans with presidential ambitions would have to assert themselves if they hoped for the party nomination four years from now.

They'd hardly look like standouts acting like rubber stamps for Eisenhower. He could expect trouble there. A good example is what happened during his first term:

Sen. Knowland of California, Republican Senate leader, backed Eisenhower repeatedly on foreign affairs. And this year he started for the presidential nomination only to withdraw when Eisenhower said he'd run.

As for the Democrats: He got cooperation and opposition from them in his first four years. They sought to make a record for themselves to run on this year. They'll have to do the same again for 1958 and 1960.

NEUROSURGERY

In an article on the Neurosurgical Treatment of Psychiatric Disorders in Modern Medicine of Canada, Dr. A. Miller, of the University of Toronto, tells us that 20 years have passed since neurosurgery (surgery on the nervous system) was introduced into psychiatry as a way of treating mental disorder. He thinks that it is now worth while to examine and determine the merits of this method of treatment from a clinical (actually observed at clinics or bedside) rather than from a technical viewpoint. His primary purpose is to deal with the general considerations which have developed from experience with neurosurgical treatment and to discuss some of the theoretical considerations of this approach.

Because mental disorders are definitely on the increase in both the United States and Canada and because none of us know just when we ourselves or a member of our family may be so affected, I would like to pass on to my readers Dr. Miller's findings.

The development of modern neurosurgical treatment of mental disorders began with G. Burckhardt, the superintendent of a Swiss mental hospital, who, in 1888, removed a particular area of the lining of the brain of a "mental" patient in the belief that mental symptoms were due to disease changes in the cortex (lining of the brain). Dr. Burckhardt treated a total of six patients, apparently with encouraging results. The procedure, however, was received with disdain by the medical profession—as new procedures too often are—and was subsequently discontinued.

Nothing more was done until 1935 when Egas Moniz of Portugal, influenced by the results of experimental work by research men who reported change in the direction of docile and placid behavior in chimpanzees by cutting of the frontal lobes (front part of the brain), formulated the theory that the cell groups responsible for unusual mental activity must have a certain position in the brain. With the collaboration of neurosurgeon Almeida Lima, Moniz developed a technique of brain surgery, subsequently called leukotomy (removal of some of the white section of the brain), and treated a number of mentally ill patients by this method. The results were impressive enough to attract wide attention. In 1936, this method of treatment was adopted by Drs. Freeman and Watts in the United States. Since that time, many workers in the field have used neurosurgery in the treatment of mental disorder.

The neurosurgical techniques developed over the past few years have been designed (1) to disconnect nerve connections to produce lasting relief of symptoms, (2) to prevent complication, and (3) to avoid producing conditions which might reduce brain function and adversely affect the intellectual and emotional capacities.

Although a complete list of neurosurgical procedures would be rather formidable, the principal types of operations that have had varying degrees of acceptance may be listed and these will be dealt with in the next few days.

NEUROSES

Are you neurotic? Read Dr. Barton's interesting booklet entitled "Neuroses" which may be obtained by sending 25 cents, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, Inc., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York, 19, N. Y.

Neurosis, is a man who believes that a soldier ought to be fit. And being fit, to his way of thinking, means carrying a minimum of fat. Ergo, off with the fat!

A number of the soldiers have been demoted or fined for not cutting down on the caloric intake. The post public relations officer brags that, under pressure from above, he shed 40 pounds of excess baggage. It's a fine system. The only trouble is, most of us don't have General Watlington to say: That's an order!

Now Make Up Your Mind

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

San Francisco—(NEA)—Acceptance speeches of Presidential Candidates Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson ought to be read together. Both speeches take good long looks at the future. The country is lucky, as it was in 1952, to have two such candidates of high ideals.

No one can doubt that Stevenson and Eisenhower really want peace, progress and prosperity, which was a Democratic slogan in 1920, as well as the GOP slogan of 1956.

Stevenson said: "I for one am ready to acknowledge the sincerity of the Republican President's desire for peace and happiness for all." But on other points Stevenson was critical of Eisenhower, personally.

Declaring that, "I do not propose to make political capital out of the President's illness," Stevenson attacked "the conduct of the President's office and of the administration he heads as very much of an issue" in this campaign. President Eisenhower's speech didn't even mention the existence of his opponent.

EACH CANDIDATE pointed to his party's glorious past. But it is to the future of America that they turn with greatest enthusiasm. The two candidates' pictures of America today differ.

Pointing to the long-range objectives of his administration, as contrasted with short-term measures of expediency, Eisenhower listed these major accomplishments: Help for the farmer through the soil bank plan. Achievement of labor peace without government interference. Reduction of the concentration of economic power in Washington. A new 14-point program to aid small business.

AS STEVENSON sees it, everyone in America is not prosperous. The family farmer especially has not had his fair share of national income. Thirty million Americans are today living in families trying to make ends meet on less than $2,000 a year. The small businessman, teacher, white collar worker and retired citizen are in serious trouble. In this government of big men—big financially—no one speaks for the little man, he says.

"The Republican party's record," says Eisenhower, "has brought about more genuine progress toward equal justice and opportunity in the past three years than was achieved in all the previous 20 years put together."

"I will have to confess that the Republican administration has performed a minor miracle," says Stevenson. "After 20 years of incessant damnation of the New Deal, they have not only not repealed it, they have swallowed it."

Appraisals of the international situation by the two candidates also differ.

"OUR COUNTRY HAS never before in peacetime been so well prepared militarily," says Eisenhower. He lists these major requirements for achieving peace: Maintenance of our own national security. Attainment of collective security not in military strength alone but in political and economic help as well. Unceasing effort towards disarmament. Promotion of the administration's Atoms for Peace plan.

Unity Is Called Big Story Of Republican Convention

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Enroute from San Francisco to Washington, Aug. 27—There was a big story at the Republican national convention that seems to have been missed by many observers. It wasn't visible to the naked eye like parades and artificially stimulated demonstrations. But it was plainly revealed if one took the time to talk with representative leaders and delegates from various states who only four years ago were scowling at each other in the Taft-Eisenhower battle. For today there is effective unity such as a major party rarely enjoys.

"Tom Dewey," said a former Taft leader of national prominence, "made the finest political speech of the convention—and he looked like a new Dewey. If he had made such fighting speeches in 1948, we never would have had Truman a second time."

CONSERVATIVE LEADERS and delegates from states that had supported Taft all made similar remarks and so did those from Dewey's side, hitherto regarded as the "liberal" wing of the party.

There were, of course, other evidences of unity that were unmistakable in the comments about the platform adopted. The Republicans, to be sure, cannot be described any longer as a "divided party." The Democrats have become the truly "divided party" now.

When a party is out of power a long time it usually splits into factions, and doesn't become an effective instrument of political action until its candidate wins the White House. The solidarity evident now in the Republican ranks resembles the unity achieved by the Democrats in 1936 after FDR's first term. Usually it is the influence and record of the President which brings this about. It has been due this time to the solid demonstration by President Eisenhower of what he himself calls a "dynamic conservatism" which happens to be closer to the American mood of today than any other brand of political philosophy.

THE CONSERVATIVES, for the most part, feel nowadays that on the things that really matter to them—the maintenance of a sound economy with a sound money system and a restraint on extravagant spending and borrowing—the President has manifested a sincere dedication to historic Republican principles. As for the things that are called "liberal" in the social welfare line, there are some differences naturally as to the wisdom of all the proposals offered. But the significant thing is that among conservatives now there is a tolerance—a tendency to adopt a wait-and-see attitude and let the experiments be tested without making the sort of protest that could split the party wide open. Perhaps the best reassurance which could have been given the conservatives on this point was conveyed to them by the President in his acceptance speech when he said: "Change with principle is progress."

From its unspectacular beginning to the singing of "God Bless America," after a moving prayer at the close, as the President of the United States stood reverently with bowed head, the Republican convention caught the mood of the country—a satisfaction with the peace and prosperity achieved thus far and a fervent desire that they be continued. The Democrats now will have to prove that change for change's sake isn't their only issue. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

Looks Are Deceiving

Nixon, Kefauver Both Strong Campaigners, Wise in Methods

By BELMAN MORROW

Associated Press Staff Writer

If Vice President Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. Estes Kefauver, were to meet in a public debate, you would see two apparently very different men.

Nixon is dark, carefully dressed, carefully-groomed, an effortless speaker, obviously intelligent.

Kefauver is big, sandy-haired, often rumpled, slow of speech, with the expression of an absent-minded owl.

ON A CAMPAIGN, Nixon's essential qualities and alertness, fierce concentration, a driving determination to convince.

By contrast, Kefauver seems perpetually relaxed, easy-moving, a man taking little more than a neighborly interest in the proceedings.

"Very different types," you would say. "Looks like the country boy versus the city smoothie."

But looks are deceiving. Actually the rival vice presidential candidates have a good many things in common.

THEY ARE BOTH ambitious, aggressive men who plan carefully and work hard at the intricate business of getting elected. Kefauver has a political background. His father, Robert Cooke Kefauver, 86, was four times mayor of Madisonville, Tenn., the senator's birthplace.

Nixon's father was a street conductor and citrus grower in Yorba Linda, Calif., but the vice president, while he was studying law at Duke University, already was interested in a political career and getting advice about it.

TO A CONSIDERABLE degree, each is a one-man operator, making his own decisions without a brain trust or intimate advisors.

Each has an attractive wife and family—Kefauver three daughters, Nixon two—and the invaluable advantages that accrue from this.

"In her way," said a man who knows the Nixons well, "Pat Nixon is as smart as her husband."

Pretty, Scottish-born Nancy Kefauver speaks fluent French and used it effectively when her husband was campaigning in the New England mill towns.

ON THE CAMPAIGN trail, both Nixon and Kefauver are careful to observe the tribal rites and customs of politics.

They call on the right people—as Nixon called on the powerful New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey delegations soon after he reached San Francisco the other day.

And they say the right things—as for example, Kefauver's graceful compliments to New Jersey's Gov. Robert Meyner at a Democratic dinner in Asbury Park after Meyner had beaten him in the state primary election.

THEY BOTH KEEP posted on the smallest details of local politics. Chances are if either man came to your city tonight he could tell you who is what in local politics and why.

With the press, both men are affable but guarded. Neither is likely to take a reporter into his confidence very far.

Each has the priceless ability to "think on his feet," that is, to turn the unexpected to his advantage.

In 1952, for example, a heckler in Oregon suddenly bellowed during a Nixon speech: "Tell us about the fund, Dick." He was referring to the $18,235 donations from Nixon's friends in California, which came to light during the presidential campaign.

PEOPLE NEARBY grabbed the heckler and started to leave him out of the hall. Nixon stopped them.

He addressed neatly to the topic of freedom of speech, said the man had a right to question him—and then went on to say he had not spent a penny of the fund for his personal use.

Similarly, in New Hampshire—where a French name can be a genuine political asset—a reporter asked Kefauver if he was circulating reports claiming he is of French ancestry.

The senator looked pained. He said, "why, I just don't believe in emphasizing nationality or race, or trying to win votes by appealing to minority groups." But he added that he would like to think his family name had French connections.

AND BOTH Nixon and Kefauver have taken long political gambles.

The senator roused the wrath of the southern states some years ago by voting affirmatively on cloture—a rule that would limit debate in the Senate and thus prevent filibustering.

He has fashioned a record as a liberal and this risky move fitted in with the record.

He also took a chance in 1952 when he entered several presidential primaries before President Truman announced that he was not a candidate for re-election.

An even longer gamble than those, however, was Nixon's television appearance, during the 1952 campaign, to tell a national audience what he had been telling local audiences about that $18,000 fund.

HE TALKED with immense earnestness, again asserting he had not used the money for himself. Meanwhile, the cameras showed his pretty wife sitting nearby. And there was a sad-eyed spaniel, checkers on the

Derailement Cost $70,000

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—The New Haven Railroad predicted normal commuter service today despite a freight derailement that blocked all four lines through here Saturday. The railroad estimated the cost of the derailement—14 cars of a 70-car train—at $70,000. The railroad blamed the derailement on a broken journal on a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie freight car. The railroad expected to have all four tracks back in operation some time today.

'Helpful' East Sets Contract

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When a skillful opponent goes out of his way to help you, the time has come to watch your step. South lost his game contract in today's hand when he accepted a Greek gift.

East won the first two tricks with the top clubs and then led a low club. South ruffed with a high trump and was delighted to find that West did not overruff. Somewhat to his surprise, South now had the chance to take a finesse in trumps. He led the queen of hearts and let it ride around, losing to East's singleton king. Declarer made the rest of the tricks, but he was already down one.

If South had been unable to get to his hand for the trump finesse, he would have begun the trumps by taking dummy's ace. This would have dropped East's singleton king, and South would have made his contract.

East could see that his singleton king would drop, and he therefore deliberately gave South a chance to reach his hand and take a losing finesse. South should have seen that it wasn't necessary for East to let him enter his own hand. If East did so deliberately, he surely wanted South to take the finesse. South should have had the wit to understand that what was good for East could not also be good for him.

floor. Nixon tied in his own story with a top campaign issue then—the GOP jibes about mink coats and corruption in Washington. He said his wife had only "a Republican cloth coat."

It was all highly charged with emotion, and it could easily have backfired. But it didn't. Nixon staked everything on a dangerous maneuver and won.

Kefauver, 53, is 10 years older than Nixon. He came to Congress in 1939. Nixon was elected in 1946. Both soon went after seats in the Senate and won.

AS A CAMPAIGNER, Kefauver has virtually copyrighted the slow-stroll-down-Main-street-shaking-hands-with-everybody-technique.

He likes nothing better than to go into barber shops and country stores, the factories and fields, ambling along, beaming, and murmuring, "I'll be mighty proud to have your help."

It has been effective everywhere, and especially in the farm states. Kefauver should be a big draw for his ticket in the Middle West.

Nixon went doorbell-ringing in his first campaign, but that was the only time. Now he depends on his ability as a speaker. He is a tireless campaigner who "whistle-stopped" far and wide four years ago.

Kefauver has a dry, natural humor. Nixon's little sallies, when he tries them, are planned.

But perhaps the greatest difference between the two men is this:

Nixon is shrewd, smooth, bold and effective, and he shows it. Kefauver is, too—but he doesn't show it.

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Playwright Arthur Miller arrived by plane from London today and said "No, I won't change my mind" and name fellow writers with whom he attended Communist party writers' meetings in 1939 and 1940. When he had appeared before the House Un-American Activities Committee, Miller denied ever being a Communist, but conceded he had been associated with a number of Communist front groups.

The Mature Parent

Confession Is Good for Soul Of Parent—AND the Child

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

As a youngster, James was forbidden ever to "play" with his father's truck.

One evening just before bedtime, he remembered that he'd left his new cap pistol out in the yard. Into his mind rushed all the warnings he'd been given about leaving toys out in the weather.

But in the yard it was too dark to locate his pistol. Worriedly scuffling through the grass, James suddenly realized the presence of his father's truck in the driveway. Seizing on it as his solution, he ran to it, switched on its lights—and saw the pistol gleaming in some nearby grass.

He was switching the lights off when his father grabbed him. Shouting, "Playing with the truck, were you?" his father cuffed him twice—and sent him crying into the house to bed.

He went with rising anger. That his father had called his productive, momentary use of the truck's lights "playing" seemed an impossible stupidity to James.

The more he thought about it, the more intolerable grew the prospect of unending submission to an authority so incapable of fair judgment. Cried he to his mother: "I don't want to live with him any more! I'm going to run away!"

Scared, she told his father. Scared, his father told the corner policeman. Scared, the corner policeman told James all about the bad things that happen to boys who run away from home. Scared, James decided not to try it.

But his secret contempt for his father's authority, he mentioned to nobody. So, though fear blocked his running away, his longing for flight was left untouched and undissolved along with that secret contempt for authority.

If it remains undissolved, James can become a person who spends his life running away from authorities of one kind or other.

What can his father do to help him?

He can confess the selfishness that earned the contempt. By confessing it, he will repudiate it, exposing it to James as something he wishes to be freed from.

Then his son can gradually free himself of the contempt the selfishness aroused.

As we all suffer from selfishness in some degree, we need never wallow in guilt when we confess it to a child. Such wallowing is just as egotistical as refusing to admit the fault at all.

The value of quiet confession is described by famed European psychoanalyst Viktor E. Frankl in his book "The Doctor and the Soul" by these words: "In repenting, man may inwardly break with an act; and in living out this repentance, the inner act, he can undo the outer act on a spiritual, moral plane."

Health for All

EATING FOR LIFE

"It doesn't matter what I eat at my age," says Grandmother pushing the spinach to the side of her plate.

And she was just telling junior to eat his spinach.

Junior has a perfect right to think she's being unreasonable. She is. Her diet needs are almost the same as his, except that she can manage with fewer calories because she climbs fewer trees.

Older people too often think the rules of health no longer apply to them. They're apt to believe, for instance, that they're too old to catch an infectious disease such as tuberculosis. A glance at TB statistics would tell them another story. The TB case rate and death rate in people over 65 is considerably higher than in people between 15 and 44.

And nutrition is one of the important factors in resistance to tuberculosis.

Why do so many older people eat poorly? The most common reason, doctors believe, is habit.

Some of them never have eaten enough meat, vegetables, and milk—and they don't want to change. Teeth also play a part. If older people will see their dentists for correction of decayed or missing teeth and ill-fitting dentures, they can enjoy solid, well-balanced meals. Money is another problem. Retired people with shrunken incomes often feel that the right foods are too expensive. Better knowledge of food values, careful marketing and budgeting will help.

What should older people eat to protect themselves from disease and make the late years of life comfortable? The daily diet of a 65 year old man should provide 1,800 to 2,400 calories, a woman's 1,500 to 1,900. Doctors recommend a pint of milk a day; butter or fortified margarine; peanut butter; one serving each of: citrus fruits or tomatoes; green or yellow vegetable; potatoes; other vegetable or fruit; whole grain cereal; eggs; meat, poultry, or sea food, and enriched or whole grain bread.

Policeman Faces Homicide Charge

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—A married policeman, romantically involved with a neighbor's wife, shot and killed her husband yesterday.

Police said Frank Seal, 25, a transit authority patrolman, told them he fired his service revolver after the husband, David Amcrum, 35, slashed him in the face with a broken pop bottle.

Seal dumped the body in a weed patch in St. Albans, Queens, police said. Then he telephoned police. He was charged with homicide.

Police said the love triangle ended this way:

Amcrum, a clerk, had quarreled with his wife, Julia, 25, over Seal's attentions to her. A few days ago she moved out of the Amcrum house (at 120-07 192nd St., St. Albans) and went to live with a woman friend.

Seal picked her up in his car early Saturday, took her on a tour of bars and then brought her back to the friend's house at 5:30 a. m.

As Seal and Mrs. Amcrum sat chatting in his car, Amcrum rushed out of the friend's house with a broken bottle and slashed Seal's face.

Seal drew his police revolver and shot Amcrum in the heart.

Seal loaded the body in his car and took it to a deserted spot. He drove to Harlem Hospital, had his face wound dressed, and returned to the house where Mrs. Amcrum was staying.

Then he telephoned police. Seal, his wife Pearl, and their three children live (at 120-03 192nd St.) two doors from the Amcrum house.

He was suspended by the transit authority pending an investigation.

Fall Into Propeller Of Boat Is Fatal

Panama City, Fla., Aug. 27 (AP)

—A Darlington, S. C., sailor died yesterday after he fell into the propeller of a fishing boat, 25 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico.

Witnesses said the victim, QM 1c W. E. Hoffman, stationed at the U. S. Navy Mines Counter Measures Station, was cut badly by the churning propellers before they were halted.

Life rings were thrown to Hoffman, but when it became apparent that he was injured seriously, First Mate Osco Davis

Think It Through

By E. F. HUTTON

When some people holler "GLOOM AND DOOM," it isn't what is said—but who says it, and why. You'll find they are the political enemies of General Eisenhower's Administration and the pals of the New Deal-Fair Deal liberals. Simple as that, politics being what they are.

First, who believes a superboom, largely based on credit, can keep booming without regrouping of forces from time to time. Second, over-all 1955 was the biggest in history. So what if the boom has temporarily slipped in automobiles and housing?

What we have is still bigger than 1949, '50, '51 and '52, when Harry—the Fair Dealer—dealt the cards and held the throttle. Read his 1952 campaign speeches. He told the voters, particularly the farmers, that they'd be mighty ungrateful if they forgot who made them "so prosperous."

If there is a substantial "letdown" this fall, it will be due more than anything else, to New Deal laws that exempt organized labor bosses from the anti-monopoly laws, and permit a few men to close down a great and vital industry—even as steel—something the Government of the United States, itself, has no power to do!

Both management and labor have more power in nation-wide collective bargaining than good men should want, or bad men should have.

When the prosperity of everybody depends on good business, we are in for several months of political attacks on business. Does this make sense to you?

Every one in business today, from company president to worker and wife, should speak up. Don't remain too doggone silent and permit the labor bosses and leftwing liberals to get too liberal with your jobs, your taxes and your savings.

jumped into the water to aid him.

Davis said Hoffman's right leg had been broken in three places and his head gashed. He died on board the fishing craft, the Gracie Rae, before a helicopter summoned by radio from Tyndall Air Force Base reached the scene.

"Money Spent At Home, Stays At Home!"

Boat Frustration

By FRANK TRIPP

In areas that have "two months of summer and ten of winter," a boat bigger than a fishing outboard is a luxury that can become a headache.

Having learned all about it, at the price of a good house, and then some, I now am observing the antics of others who will never be satisfied until they get it out of their systems.

Nothing is more fun than a sea-worthy boat big enough to be shared with friends—if the ifs that skippers encounter can no more convince a boat novice than can the experience of elders be convincing to youngsters.

Yet, like all who have "suffered," those who have learned the hard way go right on dishing out advice that is rarely heeded; which is swell for the boat builders.

A strange thing about the boat-bitten is that half of them have no place to keep a boat. Smart people who wouldn't think of buying a house that had no lot will buy a boat under equally ridiculous circumstances.

ONE OF THESE mortgaged a nice home to buy a bargain houseboat that was sacrificed by an owner who had gone broke operating it. He couldn't resist the "opportunity" to keep up with the Joneses.

The big craft floated majestically at a rented dock. Hurrah for a spendthrift summer! The guy was a big shot with his friends—till fall came. Then, what to do with the boat?

Here's what he did: He lost his home playing big shot; moved his family into the boat, chopped ice and snow away from it all winter, almost froze his wife and kids to death, near ruined the exposed boat, and sold it in the spring for just enough to make the down payment on a place worth about half the home he had lost.

HAPPILY, all of the boat-bitten are not such suckers, but in one way or another plenty approach it. The first thought, when craving a boat, should be "where will I keep it?" Assuming that you can afford to own it at all—which is your business.

Even if you can, be warned that you're likely to fall in love with your boat, and the time will come when you'll be much concerned about its mooring, upkeep, haul-out, repairs and painting; most of all its off-season storage.

When I could do it, my most fun with boats was caring for them and operating them myself. I rebuilt a sizable cruiser twice. Could do it because, after one season of worry, I built a big boathouse with 30-ton screw hoists in it. The Mary-Nan II has lived there safely for 27 years, sharing her berth with our smaller craft.

She still is a sturdy, dependable old girl and, because she has had the protection of a good home, she has outlived several neighbor cruisers that took pot-luck moorings.

IF YOU WANT to put in a screwball summer, move your teen-ager to a resort where a dozen other kids have speedy outboards. Sure as shootin' some father will buy his kid a high-powered rig that will beat all the others.

No matter how happy Junior has been with your 15-horse, it becomes a has-been and you have an unhappy boy on your hands.

You're unhappy too; aren't we all, when our kids are? So you build up a phony alibi that your wife needs a self-starter and you go all-out—and buy a heavy, super-duper 30-horse number, with all the trimmings.

IT ARRIVES. Twenty youngsters attend the launching. Junior gives them new thrills for days and weeks. Just before dark you and your wife get five-minute rides now and then.

You seldom can use it to fish because it's always out on the water beating the daylights out of every boat in sight. Until that awful day when the Got Rocks boy shows up with two 30's hanging over the stern. He's the new champ.

Everybody is unhappy again. The boat that you "bought for your wife" is out-prestaged before she has a chance to master it. She's sort of afraid of it anyway, and you wish you had back the 15-horse that you traded in. It was so handy, pulled up on the beach.

Oh well, it's coming September and you'll be moving back to town. "But what are we going to do with that big, heavy boat?"—you wonder.

The most powerful gasoline
the most powerful cars can use

A new grade of gasoline—
the successor to Shell Premium

Modern cars are wonderful performers—no question about that. Yet many cannot deliver their full power even on premium grade gasolines. Because of their high compression ratios, they require a more powerful motor fuel. Shell now introduces a new grade of gasoline to meet this need. It is Super Shell—successor to Shell Premium Gasoline.

Higher than High Test

Super Shell, more powerful than any "high test" gasoline, will give motorists more power than they ever imagined their cars could deliver.

Yes, and Super Shell will also satisfy the still more powerful '57 cars and the cars of the future, too.

This power will be delivered smoothly and quietly—because of Super Shell's anti-knock protection over the entire speed range.

More aromatics—
the power ingredients of aviation fuel

Shell is the nation's Number One supplier of fuel for commercial aviation. And aviation fuel gets its great power from ingredients known as aromatics, such as benzene, xylene, toluene. These are the most powerful ingredients that can be used to make gasoline. And they are in Super Shell in high concentration.

TCP* unleashes
the full power of high octane

In modern automobile engines, harmful deposits form after only a few thousand miles of average driving. These deposits cause substantial power loss.

This is why Super Shell contains TCP—to neutralize these harmful deposits—to unleash the full power of high octane. TCP additive keeps a car delivering its full power, mile after mile!

Look for the new white pump at your Shell Dealer's. That's the Super Shell pump—containing the most powerful gasoline the most powerful cars can use—

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

Investor Forum

WHO SHOULD SPECULATE?

Speculate is a good English word. It should be in the working vocabulary of millions of investors. It carries many connotations. To some it signifies embarking on a sea of uncharted chance and, consequently, should be avoided. To others it means buying a value where the price has more than discounted the risk involved.

Speculation is of "57" varieties. A good book on stock speculation should be written. Year in and year out I get letters reading like this: "I want to buy something that will go up." And while some of those asking such a question are not yet sufficiently grounded financially to do so, many others are.

Today I want to talk with conservative speculators. They are those who desire to buy sound values that may be underpriced.

Here is an efficient executive secretary. She is 37 years of age. She has been saving money for 14 years. She carries a savings bank account (where she deposits her dividend checks) and a checking account in a commercial bank. Her two insurance policies have a face value of $15,000. He earns $7,500 a year and saves, after taxes, $2,500 a year. Her excellent blue-chip stocks cost about $10,000 and just now they can be sold for around $25,000.

SHOULD SHE SPECULATE? Of course. In what? That is for her to decide. She catalogues 20 risk-bearing common stocks and exercising infinite patience, she writes down opposite the name of each equity about 100 words or timing the risk in owning such a stock.

She started her speculative program three years ago. Condensed here is an excerpt from her writing:

"Today, I bought 50 shares of Chrysler Motors at $58 1/4 a share. Why did I do so? Because this week public announcement was made that the Prudential Insurance Company of America had made a $250,000,000 100-year loan at 3 1/2 per cent to the Chrysler Corporation. I have a Prudential policy and I have confidence in that company."

"Based on sales records, Chrysler has a present yearly sales potential of $3,000,000,000. There are less than 9,000,000 common shares outstanding and if profits of even 5 per cent should be realized on $3 billion in sales, earnings available for dividends would be more than $15 a share."

Well, during 1955, her shares went to $101 1/2. Did she sell? No. Why not? Because she is a long pull speculator. Maybe she will never sell them.

In the same spirit since 1953 she has bought Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse Electric and Barber Oil.

AT THE HEIGHT of the Westinghouse Electric strike, she carried on a quiet investigation of the situation there. Every broker warned her against buying such an equity.

A year before, everybody had advised her against Chrysler. When 90 per cent of opinions are against the stock of a good company, she invariably buys.

The New York Stock Exchange lists scores of interesting stocks from time to time for a variety of reasons are underpriced. Basic industries have good and bad years. As a result, the best stocks in those industries often fluctuate widely in price.

I think that in 1957 the automobile and agricultural equipment industries will do better than in 1956. As I said a few weeks ago in this column, basic industries always come back.

Who should speculate conservatively? Those who have cash reserves, insurance contracts and a solid core of sound investments. After that a person should choose risks carefully and adopt a policy of good management.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Politics is still very much in the news with both conventions over, so I took a look in Andrew S. Hickey's excellent book on "The Story of Kingston." He has a good chapter on "political activities." For instance in one part Captain Hickey writes: Dutch government control in Wiltwyck was based upon the Golden Rule and a neighborly attitude was maintained until someone took advantage of the authorities. Now and then drastic action was necessary to deal with the liquor question. Esopus climate was different from that of the cold and dampness of Holland, where a drink of rum was the rule after a hard day's work; but some of the inhabitants, on continuing the custom here, consumed more rum than was good for them. A more serious situation in the opinion of the court was the illicit liquor trade with the Indians. Money problems frequently caused confusion as traders from the West Indies often brought Spanish and French coins to pay for goods or spend in the bars, necessitating settlement of arguments and establishing exchange satisfactory to all. This applied also to Dutch coins, Indian Wampum, and the beaver skin unit of bargaining in use for many years." In another part he describes all the political parties: "During the Revolution one was either a Patriot or a Tory. When the English were defeated a clause in the Treaty of Peace provided protection for the Tories, but it was hard to enforce after the bitter strife of the war. The Constitution brought forth the great orators of the period and the people became Federalists or anti-Federalists before the Constitution was adopted and Washington was chosen President. The history of Kingston follows in general the political pattern of the country, with its Federalists, Anti-Federalists, Democrat-Republicans, Democrats, Whigs, Modern Republicans and Democrats, Abolitionists, Socialists, Populists, American Labor and many small and unimportant parties that spring up near election time. Kingston has run the gamut of them all. In the first part of the 19th century such newspapers as the Political Reformer in 1837, the Ulster County Whig in 1835 and the Hickory Democrat in 1844, were published purely as campaign papers and show the intense interest in politics."

Captain Hickey further describes the excitement of political campaigns which I think went on to just before the beginning of radio which kept the folks to listen home and broke up the street corner rallies and parades somewhat. He writes: "There were two taverns in town on opposite corners, and there were battles royal at frequent intervals during political campaigns. . . . Torchlight processions and a general turnout of the supporters of either major party was the rule until only a few years ago. Muddy streets, pouring rain, snow, smelly kerosene lights fastened on the ends of poles carried over the shoulders of the marchers, or hauling a brass cannon through the mud, never dampened the enthusiasm of marchers or spectators."

I remember back in the 1920s when we were a block away from the Mansion House there were torch parades and the speakers used to let out their booming voices from the balcony of the Mansion House. Lots of excitement every night before election. I listened to them all, as though they were actors, and never understood what it was about. No doubt I clapped and yelled with everybody, kids like myself. We never missed a political outdoor rally within running distance of our home. It was fun and excitement.

Grape Co-op to Take Over Welch Company

Westfield, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The National Grape Co-operative Assn. Inc. will take over ownership and operation of the Welch Grape Juice Co. on Saturday.

The Co-op, which includes 4,600 grape farmers in 10 states, is moving six years ahead of schedule in using 15 million dollars saved by Welch.

A 1952 option agreement called for the company to set aside toward the purchase price an amount equal to 10 per cent of its sales and it was expected it would take 10 years for sufficient capital to accumulate. But stepped-up sales allowed the earlier action.

The Co-op is paying the 15 million dollars from the accumulated funds and the company owners are taking a mortgage for 13 1/2 million.

Welch has 1955 earnings of $903,641 on sales of $37,128,045.

The company has plants here and at Brocton and Watkins Glen, N. Y., North East, Pa.; Lawton and Mattawan, Mich.; Springdale, Ark., and Kennewick and Grandview, Wash.

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following, review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

A THING OF BEAUTY By A. J. CRONIN

For as far back as he could remember, Stephen Desmond wished more than anything else to become a great painter. To that end he studied in night classes at Slade in London while pursuing daytime studies at Oxford to please his father.

The Desmonds were a distinguished family of Stillwater, England; descendants of the Sieur D'Esmond, who had gone to the Crusades and who now lay beneath his marble effigy in the little church of which Stephen's father Bertram, was the rector. Of the three professions which Bertram considered suitable for an English gentleman of that time—the Church, the Bar or the Army—he ardently desired to have his elder son, Stephen, take orders in the Church.

COMING DOWN from Oxford after his graduation, Stephen finds his resolution to tell his father of his decision to give up the Church for Art weakening in the face of the family's assumption that his choice of a career was already settled; as well as by his sensitive artist's reaction to the beauty of the lovely old Georgian rectory and church and the charm of the surrounding countryside. Stephen loved and admired his family, especially his young, frail brother, David, and liked, but did not love Claire, daughter of Lady Boughton of the neighboring court, whom both families expected him to marry. Unfortunately Claire loved Stephen. That was her tragedy.

In the end Stephen agreed to give the Church a try. He goes to a settlement house in the slums of London. There the smug, narrow administration of charity disgusts him and when he defends a poor little Cockney cleaning maid, Jenny Dill, who is being brutally dismissed by the Warden because he has learned of her pre-marriage pregnancy—and smears Stephen for his interest—he leaves and goes home and tells his father that he cannot proceed with a church career but must follow his art.

CUT OFF FROM his family and allowance, Stephen goes to Paris and there indulges in an orgy of serious study and painting. At first he is taken in by unscrupulous pseudo-artists, then rescued by his old friend, Glynn the fiery Welsh coal miner, turned artist, who secures for him the protection and comradeship of "Papa Peyrat," another artist, in his ludicrous but comfortable studio.

That arrangement lasted until Peyrat went off to the country for the summer. Then for sensitive, innocent, penniless Stephen began a series of amazing adventures. In a small town in Normandy he teaches French to the two small daughters of a shrewd French shopkeeper, Mme. Crochet. Mme. C. falls in love with Stephen, throws herself at his head, is rebuffed. She complains to her husband who so threatens Stephen that he is forced to leave town.

THEN STEPHEN becomes so infuriated by a cold, heartless little circus bicycle rider, Emmy Berthelot, that he follows the circus, making sketches of its patrons, in order to be near her. That ends in complete disillusionment, but out of it comes one of his best paintings, "Emmy at the Circus" which wins him the Luxembourg prize.

With the prize money he returns to Paris and rejoins Papa Peyrat. They go to Spain, buy a donkey and cart and start off on a painting trip through the country. Papa gives most of the money to a Catholic Sisterhood and soon thereafter the going gets harder and harder. The wild, barren mountains are beautiful to paint but the hardships are appalling. Papa P. blisters his heel, it turns gangrenous and soon after Stephen manages to get him to a hospital in Malaga he dies. Shock and grief cause Stephen to turn down an opportunity to get back to England to serve in the war which had just started (this was in 1914) and he spends the next six years in Spain painting, starving and suffering from recurring attacks of a bad cough and hemorrhages.

In 1920 STEPHEN returns to England with many paintings and almost no money. Claire, now unhappily married to Stephen's cousin, Geoffrey, reads of his exhibition in a London gallery. She contrives to meet him there. She tells him that David was killed in action and that his father and sister are lonely and in straitened circumstances, and convinces him that he should go back home. Also, unknown to him, she buys two of his paintings at a high price.

Soon after Stephen returns to Stillwater he secures a commission to paint several large murals for a War Memorial (Claire managed that). The murals are considered obscene by the judging committee. A scandalous trial follows. Stephen is fined and his murals confiscated.

NOW STEPHEN decides to have nothing more to do with the commercial side of art. He would paint because he must but wouldn't even attempt to sell any. He looks up Jenny Dill, now alone, (her husband and child had died) and finds her renting a few rooms in her clean little house in the old London neighborhood where she had always lived. She gladly rents a room to Stephen and proceeds to coddle and care for him, while he paints in contented oblivion. Soon out of their need for each other comes a realization of their mutual love and they are married and are happy in each doing what they greatly want to do. Jenny doesn't know much about art but she does understand Stephen and is a perfect wife for him.

Unfortunately that cough grows worse. Stephen cannot be induced to give up painting in a cold, draughty studio and so inevitably the end came, but not before Stephen had completed his greatest masterpiece and made arrangements with London's leading art dealer to have his paintings exhibited for Jenny's sake.

In the last chapter of the book we see Stephen's father and his posthumous little son viewing Stephen's glowing masterpiece in the Tate Gallery.

A touching and unforgettable record of the tortured life of a great artist.

Meat Inspection Is Called for Entire N. Y. State

Morrisville, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—State Agriculture Commissioner Daniel J. Carey has called for a statewide meat inspection program.

He said Saturday at a picnic of the Madison county Democratic committee that such a program would improve the market for New York farmers.

Carey said health codes governing meat inspection in individual communities tended to set up economic barriers that prevented free movement of meat.

The commissioner proposed a voluntary program in which meat carrying a state stamp could move freely.

He also told the committee that five of the nation's largest manufacturers of farm machinery would not have exhibits at the New York State Fair next month. Carey said the manufacturers were not selling their products and could not afford exhibits.

Carey said that otherwise the fair would be "bigger and better."

A TRIP OUT WEST

"I have been going with a young man for about a year, and we are planning to be married the beginning of next year, although our official engagement has not been announced. My fiancé's family live out West—about a distance of nine hundred miles from here. When I get my vacation we plan to drive to his home town so that I may meet his family. We would like to take about three days to drive out there in order that we might stop to see friends of his along the way and to enjoy the country, much of which I have never seen. While we will stay with friends possibly two nights, we will have to spend at least one night at a hotel. Could this be considered accepted conduct under the circumstances, and if not, are there any circumstances under which we could travel together? I would very much appreciate hearing from you on this matter.

It would be best to announce your engagement before you go and if you stay in a first-class hotel with rooms on different floors I don't think you shall be criticized.

Glasses At Wedding

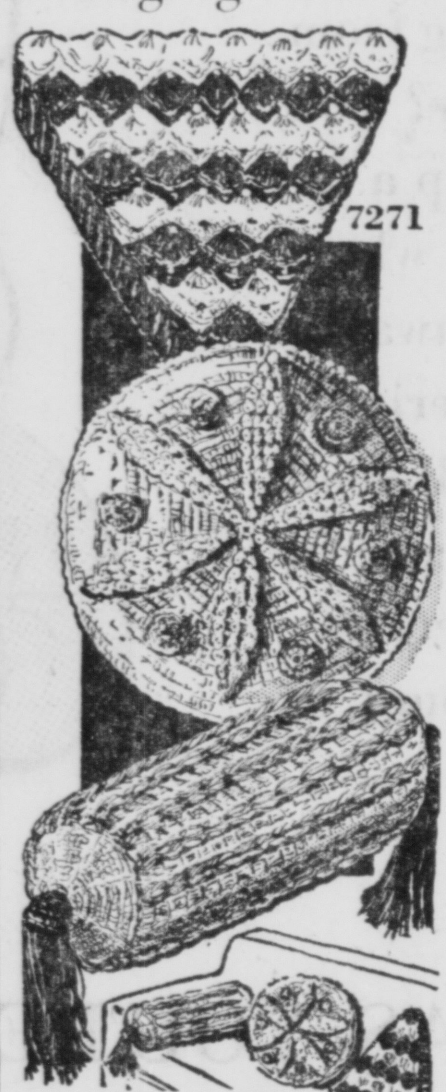

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister is going to be married soon and we have had a discussion on the wearing of eye glasses with a wedding dress. It seems very incongruous to me for a bride in white satin (or lace) and a bridal veil to wear horn-rimmed glasses suitable for an office or a schoolroom. Perhaps I am wrong. I would very much appreciate your opinion.

Answer: It would certainly be much better to wear them and be able to see and walk with grace and ease than to stumble over the aisle. If she can afford clear plastic ones for the occasion it would be well to do so—otherwise she should wear the ones she always does.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet E-38, "Afternoon Tea" includes full details for the preparation and serving. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c/o The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Summer Stage

Gaylord Mason to Star Hyde Park Playhouse Lists 'Fallen Angels'

Gaylord Mason, who has proved his ability as an actor in each of the nine plays in which he has appeared this summer—whether comedy or drama—has been given the star role in "Seven Year Itch," the final play of the Cragmoor Playhouse season, it was announced today by Elaine Perry and Irl Mowery, Managers.

The part is one of the longest single roles ever written for the stage, and only a most capable actor could be entrusted with it, since in summer stock the period of preparation is only one week.

"Seven Year Itch," by George Axelrod, is an hilarious comedy, and played successfully on the New York stage for several seasons. It has also been made into a motion picture. The central figure, played by Mr. Mason, is a "summer bachelor" who becomes involved with the girl upstairs, Lois McKim, during his wife's absence from the city. In spite of his infatuation, he is hounded by a guilty conscience, and his soliloquies and nightmares furnish some uproarious comedy.

Dinnie Smith will appear as the forgotten wife, and Gaines Kincaid as a professional wolf. Kenneth Smith, who will be seen in his first and only appearance at Cragmoor, will portray the literary psychiatrist. Additional members of the cast include Nicky Munson, Ina Rae Stanton, Lynn Bracewell, Gloria Ferrer, Walter Musser and Audrey Eisman.

"Seven Year Itch" will be presented in three acts and five scenes and will be directed by Elaine Perry. It will be designed by Robert Maxwell. It opens Wednesday, August 29 and will continue through Monday, September 3, when the Cragmoor Playhouse will close for the season.

Fear Disappears in Water

Detroit (AP)—Blind children are freed from one of their greatest fears in a gay hour of swimming pool fun. That's the fear of bumping into things, which disappears for the youngsters shouting and splashing in an indoor pool once a week. But even more important things are accomplished in the first swimming classes ever held for blind children in Detroit. Their teachers say the classes give the youngsters "a chance for free movement to let off steam." They move as freely as fish in the water, knowing sudden motion won't mean a bruised knee or bumped elbow from some unexpected hard object. They're learning to swim and even dive. To appreciate the difference, teachers say you should see the blind children in school—"they are quiet and subdued and always a little afraid. But they lose that fear once they are in the water."

Gold-Plated Turbines

Columbus, Ohio (AP)—Scientists at Battelle Memorial Institute here believe gold-plated turbine blades may increase the life and operating efficiency of jet engines. The institute reports that experiments show a thin plating of gold helps protect turbine blade metals from deteriorating at high temperatures. Many turbine blades are made in part from molybdenum, a metal that corrodes at high temperatures. At 1800 F., the institute reports, the molybdenum burns rapidly, forming a gaseous compound. The discovery was made during a research program for the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The stock market went into a gentle decline in the early afternoon today in listless trading.

Prices were higher at the start, then backed off as the session progressed. Changes were narrow.

Many traders stayed on the sidelines as volume was estimated at 1,500,000 shares for the day, compared with Friday's 1,530,000 shares.

In the early afternoon, aircraft and building materials were the only higher groups. Steels and metals were mixed, and motors lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $185.60. Industrials were up to 10 cents, rails off 20 cents and utilities unchanged.

Prices were irregular on the American stock exchange in fairly active trading.

Corporate bonds were lower and U. S. governments steady.

MRS. JOSEPH GREGORY JR. (Fautz Photo)

Carol Keizer Weds Joseph Gregory Jr. At St. Joseph's

Miss Carol Keizer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keizer of Mt. Marion Park, became the bride of Joseph Gregory Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gregory of 23 Rondout street, Saturday, August 25 at 11 a. m. before a nuptial Mass in St. Joseph's Church.

Officiating was the Rev. James V. Keating.

White pompons decorated the church for the occasion.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a Chantilly lace and nylon tulle gown trimmed with sequins. The gown was styled with a fitted bodice and front panels of seed pearls. A crown of seed pearls held her veil of French silk illusion in fingertip length and the bride carried a lace covered prayer book.

Miss Patricia Keizer of Mt. Marion Park and sister of the bride was the maid of honor. She wore a blue ballerina length gown of quilted starched nylon chiffon and net styled with a nylon strapless bodice, net stole and full flared skirt with double flounce of net. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow pompons.

Bridesmaids included Miss Loretta Scott of Hanratty street, niece of the bridegroom and Mrs. Raymond Morris of New Paltz. Their gowns were identical to that of the maid of honor but in yellow and they carried cascade bouquets of blue pompons.

Clarence Gregory of 23 Rondout street was the best man for his brother. Ushers included Mr. Keizer, brother of the bride, and Frank Baniewski.

A reception was held at the Alpine for approximately 100 guests following the church ceremony.

Mrs. Gregory, who is a graduate of Kingston High School, is employed by IBM in Kingston. Her husband graduated from Kingston High School also and served four years with the U. S. Air Force. He is an employee of IBM in Kingston.

For her wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the bride wore a beige shantung sheath dress with white accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory will make their future home in Mt. Marion Park.

Report Labor

the Democratic cause appeared to have an edge.

It considered likely the council would make no formal endorsement at its four days of sessions in this northeastern Pennsylvania camp.

The problem was whether to summon the AFL-CIO general board, composed of representatives of all the 140 AFL-CIO unions in the next few weeks. Any scheduling of a general board meeting well ahead of the November election would be regarded as intention to go ahead with a Stevenson-Kefauver endorsement.

Both the separate AFL and CIO formerly endorsed Stevenson over Eisenhower in 1952. The two labor organizations merged last December.

AFL-CIO president, George Meany, among others, was reported inclined to avoid a Democratic endorsement, contending it might be wiser to individual AFL-CIO union's do what they want while the parent organization stays out of it.

Those working for a Democratic endorsement include Walter Reuther of the Auto Workers union, the former CIO president; David G. Dubinsky of the garment workers; and Joseph Keenan of the electrical workers.

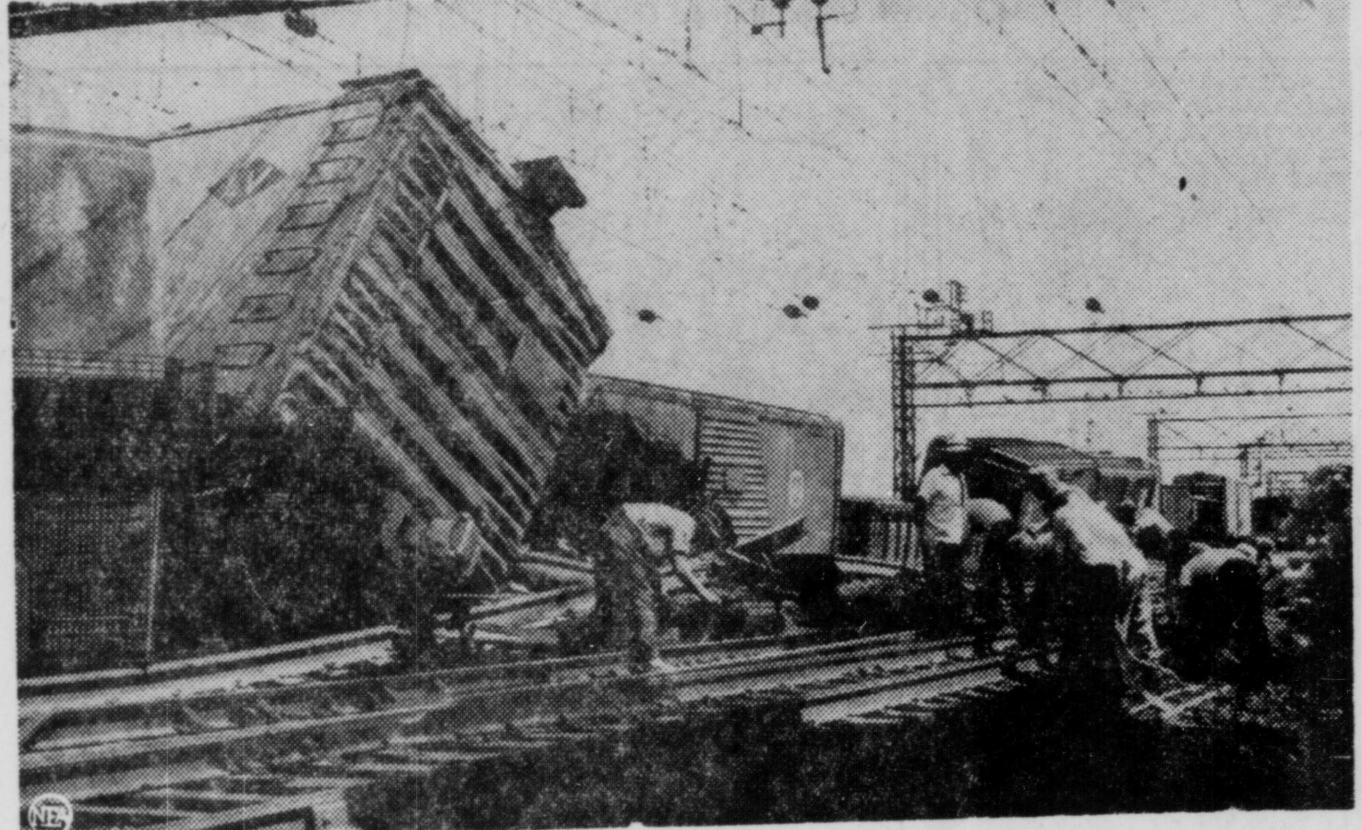

They feel an AFL-CIO endorsement would help swing worker votes behind the Democrats nationally and in key congressional races. They contend that failure to endorse the Democrats would convey a note of disapproval.

Meany told the platform drafting committees of both major parties that the AFL-CIO would be tied to neither the Democrats nor the Republicans but would support organized labor's friends and try to defeat its enemies.

But organized labor normally leans toward the Democrats. James McDevitt, co-chairman of the AFL-CIO's committee on political education (COPE), said the union's scorecard on voting records in Congress "shows Kefauver with a very good record and Nixon with a very bad one."

He referred to a tabulation of votes by members of Congress for and against legislation the union leaders consider of direct importance to them during the last 10 years. The scoring is expected to be announced during the meeting.

Two Thefts, Burglary Reported to Police

A car theft, a burglary and the theft of a camera from a parked car were reported to local police early today.

Police were notified at 7:55 a. m., that the car of James E. Cullum, of 64 Foxhall avenue, father of former Police Sgt. James Cullum, had been taken from where it was parked near his house. It was reported located on VanGaasbeck street later this morning.

A few minutes earlier police were notified that the building of Martin-Moran, Inc., of 450 East Chester street had been entered. A nut machine was broken and a cash box was pried open, the report said, but no money of consequence was missing. Officers John Frash and Garvin Fisher investigated.

William Barnes, of 14 Van-Gaasbeck street, reported at 7:45 a. m., that a camera valued at $150 had been taken from his sedan, which had been prepared for a vacation trip, and left parked over night in front of his house. Entrance was gained by the breaking of a lock, the report said.

Nasser Expected

ing his efforts to hanging onto the 103-mile waterway—which he seized for the Egyptian government on July 26—without getting into a war. He appeared willing to examine all possible solutions which would not involve what he considers a surrender of Egyptian sovereignty.

There was a growing feeling among Egyptian officials and the public that Britain and France were not bluffing about the possible use of force. A London report said roads leading to the embarkation port of Southampton were jammed with convoys of military vehicles painted a desert yellow. Four freighters at the port were being loaded with ammunition and military equipment.

Experienced diplomats in Moscow, however, said they believed the Soviet government feels there is little chance the West will start a shooting war over the Suez. The Soviet government was reported to have taken the British and French willingness to negotiate as a sign of weakness.

Britain and France have charged that Nasser's lone-handed control of the canal imperils western Europe's lifelines, particularly the flow of Middle East oil.

Charges and countercharges flew over whether Egyptian nationalization of the 87-year-old waterway was impairing the efficiency of its operation.

Runs Off Thruway

Sunday, ran off the Thruway near Saugerties, struck a reflector post and came to rest against a rock wall, according to Thruway state police. The driver was arrested charged with driving at an endangering rate of speed and paid a $10 fine when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Glenford Myers of Saugerties.

Policeman--Say, fellow, do you know who I am? Drunk--I can't say ash I do, but if you'll tell me where you live, I'll help you home.

The ticket agent at the bus terminal was checking his stubs preparatory to closing for the night, when a large, determined woman bustled into the waiting room. Depositing her suitcases and packages, she hurried to the ticket window.

Woman--When does the next bus for Westumpka leave? Ticket Agent--I am sorry, madam, there are no more busses for Westumpka.

Woman--There must be some mistake. My son-in-law told me there was an 11 o'clock bus. She shot a glance at the waiting room clock.

Woman--It's only ten minutes till eleven. Ticket Agent--The 11 o'clock bus was discontinued two months ago, madam. There will be no more for Westumpka till morning.

The woman was unperturbed. Woman--I am sure there is one at eleven. It is a large green bus and it leaves directly in front of the building. Has it come in yet? Ticket Agent--There is no 11 o'clock bus, madam.

Woman--There most certainly is. I tell you it is a large green bus and it leaves for Westumpka at exactly 11 o'clock. (glancing at waiting room clock again) My son-in-law told me all about it. It has large wicker seats. Ticket Agent--Very well, madam, you win the argument, but let's see you try to catch the bus.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone out of town on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out. And when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped out he refused to tell her. The scheme worked admirably! In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband didn't want her to know about!

Man--Jim is a fast talker. Friend--Well, why not? His father was a tobacco auctioneer and his mother was a woman.

Blueberry Muffins Offer Michigan Taste Tempter

DELICIOUS NUGGETS of flavor peep from the crusty surface of these blueberry muffins, Michigan favorites.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

In St. Joseph, Mich., we found wonderful buttermilk muffins. Mrs. Darford Sisson gave us the recipe. Mrs. Sisson cooks for her family, has two teen-agers and a married daughter and is manager of the kitchen at the St. Joseph River Yacht Club, also president of the high school Parent-Teacher Association.

Busy, yes. A good cook? Well, read on and decide for yourself.

"Here in blueberry country," she says, "we all find many ways of using them in cooking and baking. Picking them yourself is such fun, but out of our season we use them from a can or box. These blueberry buttermilk muffins add a festive note to breakfast or luncheon, yet add only a little to the work. The glaze of granulated sugar on the tops makes them very eye-catching."

Pinza Is Improving

Cervia, Italy, Aug. 27 (AP)—Singer Ezio Pinza is improving nicely, his physicians said after examining the ailing stage and screen star today. Dr. Celestino Scaravelli, director of the Cervia Hospital, said an electrocardiogram was satisfactory and he has ordered very little medication since everything was going well. "The best treatment is rest," the physician said. Pinza suffered a slight paralytic stroke Friday and cancelled his contract to appear in a new Broadway play. But his wife indicated he hopes to be able to return to the stage.

Sift together dry ingredients (except oats) into bowl. Add rolled oats and stir lightly to blend. Add egg and buttermilk, stirring only until dry ingredients are dampened. 3 Clubs Bunched At Top of Race In Eastern Loop

(By The Associated Press)
The calendar says the Eastern League schedule will be completed in two weeks.

But the proximity of position of three teams in contention for the championship doesn't bear out the schedule maker's optimism.

Schenectady (with a slight assist from the timepiece) and Reading are currently tied for first place in the standings. Binghamton is a game behind the leaders.

THE SCHENECTADY Blue Jays moved into the first deadlock when the second game of its doubleheader with Williamsport was called because of Pennsylvania curfew law. The Jays had won the opener, 6-0, and the second game is hanging in a 2-2 tie.

Binghamton and Allentown split a twin bill, the Triplets taking the first, 10-6, and dropping the second, 2-1, to the host Redbirds.

In the only other league game, Albany eked out a 3-2 decision at Johnstown.

The scheduled seven-inning nightcap of the Schenectady-Williamsport contest went nine and a half innings before it was halted.

THE GRAYS had two men on base with no outs when the clock was pulled. The contest will be continued, rather than replayed entirely, when the teams meet in Schenectady next week.

J. C. Anderson allowed only four hits as the Jays won the opener. Ed Waytula's homer and Harry Anderson's three-run triple sparked the victory.

The first game of the Binghamton-Allentown doubleheader saw nine pitchers in action, including five for the winning Trips.

The second game was delayed in the fourth inning over an umpire's decision.

JOE TESAURIO of the Triplets hit a liner between first and second. The ball hit Umpire Augie Donatelli and bounced into short right field. Donatelli held the baserunners at first and second prompting Binghamton Manager Freddie Fitzsimmons to argue the call. After several conferences, play was resumed—15 minutes later. The umpires decision was upheld.

Matt Dashkalakis hit a two-run homer to help Albany in its triumph over Johnstown. The Senators' first baseman also figured in Albany's first-inning score when he cracked a single.

Johnstown helped Albany's cause leaving a dozen men on base.

Olin Cops Net Division; Vogt's 81 Leads Field

Harry Hohnhorst, the ageless Woodstock artist, became the first player to score a repeat in the Class A division (70 and over) of the Ulster County Seniors Golf Association tournament, Sunday at the Wiltwyck Country Club.

Hohnhorst captured his second crown in four years with a 12-hole total of 62. Bruff Olin of Woodstock, a track and field star at Michigan State 55 years ago, captured low net in Class A with a 45.

Roy Vogt, moving from Class B to Class D became the first player to win a trophy in two different divisions with a low gross of 81.

Vogt also had his name engraved on the Jay Rifkenbary Memorial plaque for the second time.

Hohnhorst's name goes on the Anthony J. DeLisio Memorial plaque for the second time as a result of his victory in Class A. The 1956 champions are:

Gross Division
Class A—Harry Hohnhorst, Woodstock, 63.
Class B—Arthur A. Davis Sr., Wiltwyck, 101.

Class E—Tie between Ken Davenport, Wiltwyck and Walter S. Van Wagenen, Woodstock, at 73.

HOHNHORST toured the front nine in 48 and had 14 on next three holes. Olin carded a 65 and had 20 handicap for the 45 net.

Arthur Davis, the Wiltwyck president, wrapped the Class B gross with nines of 51-50 for 101. Doc Forst netted 82 with 112 gross and 30 handicap.

Baron spliced nines of 44-51 for 95 in Class C. Jay Le Fevre fired 50-50-100 gross and had 30 handicap.

Vogt was all by himself in the Class D competition, with 40-41-81. Lou Netter fired 103 gross and had 26 handicap.

In Class E, the "baby division," J. Watson Bailey and Maurice Davenport tied with 83s, with Bailey getting first place on a matching of cards.

Walter Van Wagenen and Ken Davenport tied with net 73s and on a matching of cards with handicap it still came out a flat-footed tie. They will receive duplicate awards.

Boss of Brooklyn

Buhl's 7 Wins Over Dodgers Equals Walters' Feat of '39

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Sometime last winter or last spring, Bob Buhl added something to his pitching habits. Maybe it was better control. Or a luck charm. Whatever it was, it may mean a long-sought pennant for Milwaukee's Braves.

The 28-year-old righthander never had won more than 14 games in any of his three seasons in the majors, and in eight decisions against Brooklyn he won only three in the three years. Now he has 16 successes packed away this season—and seven of them have been over the world champion Dodgers.

BUCKY WALTERS was the last pitcher to beat the Braves seven times in one season. That was in 1939 when he was with Cincinnati.

Buhl nailed the Brooks for the seventh time without defeat 6-2 yesterday, hoisting the Braves into a three-game National League lead over the Dodgers.

It also gave Milwaukee a 4½-game spread over third place Cincinnati, which defeated Philadelphia 10-5, then lost 11-4 for a doubleheader split.

Fourth place St. Louis and New York also split, the Cards breaking the Giants' winning streak at five games 4-3, then losing their own five-game streak by the same score. Pittsburgh took two from the Chicago Cubs as Bob Friend won his 15th with a four-hitter 2-0, then came back for 1½ innings of hitless relief to save a 2-1 nightcap decision.

In the American, Tom Sturdivant gave Detroit just six hits and the Tigers chipped in with five errors as the New York Yankees won 7-0, but the Bengals then took the nightcap 5-4. The split left the Yankees with a 7½-game lead over Cleveland, which defeated Washington 4-1 on Early Wynn's 15th-victory four-hitter. The Chicago White Sox divided with Baltimore, losing 8-1 and winning 5-1. And Boston split with Kansas City, losing 7-6 in 10 innings after winning 2-1.

BUHL, WHO GAVE seven hits and six walks but didn't lose his shutout until Sandy Amoros slugged a pinch two-run homer in the ninth, was backed up by Hank Aaron's 20th homer and Johnny Logan's 12th. Roger Craig lost it.

Harvey Haddix six-hit the Redlegs in the nightcap for his 12th victory. Stan Lopata hit his 29th home run, second of the day, for a slim 5-4 lead in the first, but the Phils, who had 16 hits, then locked it up with a six-run ninth. Brooks Lawrence (16-8) was the starter-losser. Cincinnati hit just one home run for the day. It came in the 15-hit first game attack. Ted Kluszewski socked it, his 33rd.

HANK SAUER'S three-run homer in the fourth carried Tom Poholsky and the Cards home in the opener against rookie Joe Margoneri. Then after Ray Katt and Stan Musial homered for early Cardinal leads, the Giants scored two unearned runs in a winning nightcap eighth. Vinegar Bend Mizell lost it with ex-Cardinal Dick Littlefield winning his second.

Friend struck out five while Roberto Clemente's two doubles figured in both first game Pittsburgh runs. Then when the Cubs broke a 27-inning scoreless slump in the nightcap, Friend returned to leave the tying run stranded in the eighth and preserve Ron Kline's 11th victory. Bob Rush lost the opener.

FOUR OF THE Yankee runs were unearned in the opener, with Gil McDougald driving in a pair for Sturdivant's 12th victory. The Tigers' over-hauled a 2-0 Yank lead with a five-run third to beat Maury McDermott in the nightcap. Steve Gromek won it. Mickey Mantle went homerless.

Rocky Colavito hit a two-run double and socked his 16th homer with a man on for all Cleveland's runs. Three of the Nat hits off Wynn were by Pete Runnels.

Laying It on the Line:
One of the most illuminating series of articles on problems of small fry baseball we ever read was recently authored by Benny Rinaldi and Dave Schron of the Saugerties Post.

It was a hard hitting series because it dared mention subjects and name names. Saugerties is a small town and everybody knows everybody else. It is not the intent of this observer to take sides in the dispute . . . and there seemed to be arguments for both sides.

But the stories cleared the air and dissipated the tension which threatened to mount to the explosion point. Both of these young newspapermen made and lost friends in the great debate. That is the inevitable result when a highly controversial topic is kicked around in free debate. But they rendered great service to the cause of small fry baseball in the village by bringing the long smoldering feuds and arguments into the open. More than anything else, they proved that unless small fry leagues are operated by adults who have baseball experience intuition and "sense," their future is doomed.

Barney O'Toole, captain of ushers at the Polo Grounds, made the right move, as far as the fans were concerned, when he made a manager-type substitution during the first game of a doubleheader at the Polo Grounds. The fuss started when an usher took a ball away from a kid who violated the rules by going on the field after it. The customers started to boo. The usher sassied them. The spectators started throwing things at the usher. The situation was getting out of hand when O'Toole readied a replacement, surged to the embattled usher's post and relieved him. "It's tough enough getting customers into the park," said O'Toole of the last place Giants, "without fighting them when they get here."

Mrs. Charles E. Burnett, left, congratulates Mrs. A. J. (Wiggie) DeLisio on the 17th hole at Woodstock Country Club.

Mrs. DeLisio Captures 2nd Woodstock Title

Mrs. Anthony J. (Wiggie) DeLisio took the lead on the second hole and never relinquished it, as she defeated Mrs. Charles E. Burnett, 3 and 1, Saturday for her second straight Woodstock Country Club Women's title.

The match ended on the 17th hole when Mrs. Burnett's second shot landed near the rocks fronting the approach to the green. She had just sliced a hole off Mrs. DeLisio's lead with a par-4 on the 16th and blasted a long tee shot down the 17th fairway.

EXCEPT for a couple of bad drives on the fifth hole, Mrs. DeLisio played methodically and had the situation in hand all the way. She carded a neat 82 on nines of 40 and 42. She accumulated 13 of these strokes on the par-5 fifth. She also blew a few short putts that kept her from breaking 80.

Mrs. Burnett made a fine recovery from a topped tee shot to halve the first hole. But she needed six on the second hole which Mrs. DeLisio took with a bogie-5. The defending champion stayed in front the rest of the way.

Yonkers Post Scores 10-0 Win

Togus, Maine, Aug. 27 (AP)—Yonkers, N. Y., exploded a big fifth inning here yesterday on Don DiChiara's grand slam to bag the first game of a double elimination series with Everett, Mass. 10-0 in the Section A finals of the Junior American Legion baseball tourney.

DiChiara drew first blood in the second after a walk and progressing to third on an error. Frank Pearson's single brought him home.

Teeing off again in the third, his 300-foot slam over the right field fence drove in a full field starting a run that netted two more before the inning ended.

HURLER HENRY FISCHER with two for four followed DiChiara's lead with a single to left that brought Ronny Kubilis from a stolen second base and Jerome Fields from first.

In the fifth, Kubilis and Fischer went on with singles after two outs while Tony Capo and Tony Antonucci followed on balls. A slam to mound by Joe Ruyack went over the first baseman's head on the relay, bringing home Fischer and Capo.

Tourney officials said both would play an afternoon game tomorrow with a second game to follow immediately if necessary to decide which will represent the East in next month's Legion World Series at Bismarck, N. D.

Torpid Tops Field In Yonkers Pace

An outstanding group of two-year-old pacers, headed by the world record holder, Torpid, will compete in the $15,000 added Summer Pace at Yonker's Raceway Thursday night. With 113 eligible for the race, and about forty of them on the grounds at the moment, Racing Secretary Ted Gibbons will be prepared to race the event in two divisions when entries close tomorrow morning.

With the probability that 20 will be named, and the event raced in two divisions, the total value of the race will be close to $30,000.

No matter how the race is held, Torpid, driven by John Simpson, will be the favorite. The bay son of Knight Dream-Torresdale set a new world standard of 2:02 3/5 for two-year-old pacing colts on a half-mile track. This bettered the mark set by Adios Boy in 1953.

Many of the other outstanding two-year-old pacers in the country will go against Torpid. Billy Houghton will have a well-considered Gillian Hanover and the Sol Camp Stable will have Razzle Dazzle and Black Dazzle. The former looked particularly sharp at Goshen last month.

Others that rate consideration are Adios Babe, A. P. Lause, Bronze Eden, First Time, a Good Time colt; Great Adios, Little River Pete, Morgan Byrd, Tar Baby, Royal Melody and Waydies.

The cards:

Roy Vogt Captures Wiltwyck Golf Title

Roy Vogt is Wiltwyck Country Club's second golf champion today, but the circumstances surrounding his Saturday match with Bill Costello, the Cinderella Kid of the championship tournament, will be the topic of locker room conversation for a long time to come.

Vogt won the crown when Costello, injured by a bounding ball on the second fairway, conceded after nine holes of a 36-hole playoff.

The unfortunate climax to the upset-studded tournament took place on the second fairway.

VOGT and Costello had hit their tee shots on the second hole and searching for them when a group behind them teed off.

Costello located his ball and placed a handkerchief over it and was helping Vogt find his when he saw a tee shot heading in his direction.

As he put it: "I raised my right arm trying to ward off the shot but it struck me on the right wrist, near the small bone."

Vogt and Costello were hidden from view of the next group on the hole which is a downhill, right dogleg.

Play resumed after Vogt's ball was found but Costello said the injury affected his ability to hit his woods and long irons.

AFTER completing nine holes, Costello informed Vogt he was conceding the match. He was six down at the time.

The unfortunate denouement came as a disappointment to many Wiltwyck members, who had anticipated a rousing playoff. But few members doubted Vogt's ability to nail down the crown over the long and exacting 36-hole route.

Costello had turned in two spectacular upsets in early rounds, eliminating Harvey Bostic and Jerry Affron.

Sandler Amputee Golf Champion

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—One-armed Robert Sandler of Des Moines, Iowa, is the 1956 champion of the National Amputee Golf Assn.

The 37-year-old attorney fired a 77 Saturday to match his Friday score and win top honors on the par-72 course of the Lake Shore golf and country club. It was the association's eighth annual golf tournament.

Sandler, a former tennis star at the University of Iowa, lost his right arm in an accident at the age of 11. He started playing golf 10 years ago.

Jack Harrison of Grand Rapids, Mich., was runner-up with a 156. Walt Baskovich of Gary, Ind., turned in the best round of the tourney—a 74. But an opening day 83 gave him a total 157.

Bob Rogers of Morristown, N. J., won the junior championship with 85-83-156. Walter Danman of Sedan, Kan., took the senior trophy with 86-84-170.

AAA ROAD TESTS SHOW:

Blue Sunoco averages 7.67 more miles per dollar than 12 other premiums

On $3.00 worth of Blue Sunoco, test cars were driven out of town till they ran dry. They couldn't get back on $3.00 worth of any of the other premium gasolines tested. They never got home! Blue Sunoco averaged 23.0 miles farther!

These tests were conducted by the American Automobile Association in 6 cities under normal city-country driving conditions—using typical drivers in late model high-compression cars whose manufacturers recommend a premium gasoline.

Results of tests confirm, once again, the fact that Blue Sunoco is America's greatest gasoline value. Why not take advantage of it—get more miles for your gasoline dollar? Stop in at your neighborhood Sunoco dealer's today, and try a tankful of Blue Sunoco. It's the gasoline that meets today's new higher premium octane standards and sells at regular gas price.

High-Test... Premium Octane... Regular Gas Price

TEST CARS, fueled with $3.00 worth of Blue Sunoco, driven till dry. Then, with $3.00 worth of other premiums, retraced same route...but they never got home! AAA officials supervised all fuelings.

AAA OFFICIALS accompanied drivers of test cars every mile of the route, going and returning, carefully noting car performance and mileage.

MAMIE GREETED—Sister Mary Ursula, 80, of the Notre Dame order, greets Mrs. Eisenhower as the latter accompanied the President on a mid-morning visit at the historic Catholic mission in Carmel, Calif., Aug. 26. (AP Wirephoto).

west Siberia, north of India, Afghanistan, and Pakistan, and west of China. In addition to this area, the Soviets have also utilized the area of the Barents Sea (part of the Arctic ocean) for nuclear testing.

MENTION of the area being north of India in this first official disclosure of its location was significant in the light of neutralist India's criticism of this country's atomic tests.

It pointed out that under the Soviet policy of secrecy about such tests, adjacent areas get no advance warning of radio-active "fall out" danger. Strauss noted, on the other hand, that U. S. tests always have been announced well in advance and that news—both American and foreign—sometimes have been permitted to watch and report the tests.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, indicated the latest Russian explosion involved a hydrogen weapon. In response to questions whether it was a hydrogen blast, Hagerty replied that it was "higher than atomic." But then he said he would have to check with the AEC in Washington when news-men asked him to pin it down.

AFTER CHECKING, Hagerty called attention to use of the word "nuclear" in Eisenhower's formal announcement.

"A nuclear device can mean either atomic or hydrogen," Hagerty said, "and that is as far as I can go."

This was the 13th announcement by the United States of nuclear explosions by the Soviet Union, but Strauss said the actual number of Russian detonations has been "significantly higher" than 13.

"This country," Strauss said, "does not disclose all of the USSR shots of which it has knowledge, but limits itself to statements about explosions of special interest because of their large size, their series character or some other unusual fact."

Strauss gave no hint as to the nature of the "special interest" in this latest blast. But he did seem to rule out the size of the blast as the answer.

He recalled the United States announced last Nov. 23 that the Russians had touched off a nuclear device which was "the largest thus far in the USSR, and was in the range of megatons." Use of the plural megatons—at that time indicates it was larger than last Friday's with a "yield less than a megaton."

The searchlight atop the Empire State Building in Manhattan can be seen as far away as Boston and Baltimore. The tiny "flame," less than one-half inch long, has more power than the surface of the sun.

at the Westchester-Fairfield county, Conn., line.

Completion of the turnpike and thruway is scheduled for 1958. Actual joining of the two roads, however, may not take place until a year later because the Byram river bridge between Westchester county and Connecticut is behind schedule. Pending completion of the bridge, through traffic will have to detour over local streets in Rye and Port Chester on the New York side and in Greenwich on the Connecticut side, Tallamy said.

The first section of the New England thruway to be opened will be from the Hutchinson River Parkway just south of the Bronx line to the Boston Post road in New Rochelle. Tallamy said the stretch from New Rochelle to Larchmont should be open early next year.
